Holy Name Celebrates Catholic Schools Week A+ for America: Catholic Schools

It's that time of year when Catholic Schools around the country stop to reflect on the contributions made to the communities that support us. The National Catholic Education Association provides a new theme each year as a starting point for the many celebrations that take place in our schools. This year's theme is A+ For America: Catholic Schools. It speaks to the excellence in education our schools have traditionally provided for thousands of students.

Holy Name School is no stranger to academic excellence. Since 1917 this red brick building has provided a strong foundation of curriculum that is both challenging and comprehensive. The dedication of teachers is always referenced at alumni gatherings and at current School Board and parent meetings.

The A+ designation really belongs to these unselfish educators who give so totally of themselves for the benefit of their students and their families. Everyone of us can remember a teacher that inspired us to do our best, pushed us beyond what we wanted to do and made the effort to pick us up after an unsuccessful attempt so we could try again.

Our current Holy Name staff averages 22 years of teaching experience. Thirty-five percent have advanced degrees. Each teacher continues to fill his/her bag of teaching tools by attending workshops and conferences offering the latest information on best classroom practices. I'm sure you already know that salary is not the motivator for Catholic school teachers!!!

I am proud to boast that 85% of our 8th grade graduates choose Catholic high schools and our alumni average a 98% high school graduation rate. Eighty percent pursue post high school educational opportunities. These statistics verify the strong academic nature of our classrooms and the excellent foundation provided for each student.

I recognize that without your continued support of our programming none of these accomplishments would be possible. Your generosity makes it possible for this teaching staff to witness child miracles everyday. Please continue to pray for all of us who work and learn in this red brick building called Holy Name School.

God Bless you and your families.

The mission of Holy Name Catholic Elementary School is to educate children of diverse backgrounds to be academically prepared, compassionate toward others and rooted in the Catholic Christian Community

Celebrating Catholic Schools Week

Despite the cold and dreary weather, Holy Name students spent the first week of February celebrating Catholic Schools Week inside the warm and toasty walls of Holy Name Elementary School. Activities included school spirit day, career day, all school bingo, spelling bee, and special drawings for students who used their A+ social skills.

Reverend Paul Hoelsing, Director of Vocations for the Archdiocese and Corbin Williams, 6th grade.

The Holy Name 7th and 8th graders put their engineering minds to the test to build their own personal water filters in Mr. McDermott’s science lab. Using materials such as sponges, cotton balls, sand, coffee filters, and two-liter bottles, they designed and constructed water filters to clean murky water. These young “engineers” tested their filters and devised modifications to make their water as clean as possible. 8th graders Peyton O’Neal and Lily Nguyen as well as 7th graders Antigone Falkner and Erin Lahowetz created the winning filters in their respective classes. The winners were given the title,

Holy Name Student Wins Heartland Essay Contest

Nyasibit Kume, a 5th grader at Holy Name School was one of the winners of this year's American Red Cross Heroes in the Heartland Essay Contest. Her essay, written about her mother, was chosen from over 600 submissions. Nyasibit chose her mother as the person who inspires her the most and who is her role model. She and her mother will attend a luncheon on March 9th honoring the seven essay winners from the Omaha and Council Bluffs area.

Nyasibit and her mother

My Hero: The Story of the Woman Who Cares

By Nyasibit Kume

My hero is my mom. She has taken care of me since I was born. She brought me to America, along with my brothers and sisters, at the age of 6 months, to give us better lives. Before we were born, my mother lived in Africa. She took care of her brothers because their parents had both died.

Now that we are all here, in America, it is not always easy for her. It is difficult for her to find a job, especially since my father passed away in 2006. She does all she can...but she is basically trying to get by on her own. She does know English, but has an African accent, so it is sometimes hard for people to understand her. And although we don't have much, I remember her once donating $200 to the Sudan so they could build a school for the children. Education is important to her. She also values religion. She makes sure we keep up with our faith by having us go to Catholic schools and attending church every Sunday. I really appreciate what she does and reward her by assuring her that when she gets older I will take good care of her just as she has done for me and my family. She is caring and loving. She means a lot to me because she is the only living parent I have. I know it is very hard for her to do everything on her own, so my sisters and I try to help her out. She does so much for us and others, and yet she doesn't get rewarded. I really wish I could reward her....and I will when I'm older. My mom is my hero and I hope to someday be her hero, too!

World Language at Holy Name

Holy Name School was fortunate to receive culture kits from the Nebraska Humanities Council to use during the month of November. During World Language classes, the students learned about two different cultures. The younger students learned about Mexico and the older students learned a little history as they researched the Volgadeutsch (Germans from Russia.) A favorite part of the kits was the clothing. The students enjoyed learning about the Mexican and German clothing and comparing it to our modern day dress.

Mix It Up! Holy Name students spent the lunch period on November 18th, “Mixing It Up!” The students sat with students from other grades and spent some time learning about each other. Student council set up the tables and helped the younger students find their group. The day was part of the Mix It Up at Lunch program sponsored by Teaching Tolerance (www.tolerance.org). Holy Name was one of over 8,000 schools participating in Mix It Up. The program is designed to promote tolerance of other cultures and beliefs. What a great way to spend lunchtime!

Littlehawk Entertains Students

Holy Name proudly welcomed Kenneth Littlehawk to our school on November 11th. Mr. Littlehawk entertained us with songs and stories from his youth. He emphasized the importance of reusing all items and demonstrated the use of shells, rocks and bones as musical instruments. He also spoke about the importance of educating the soul and the mind. Respect was a common theme throughout his talk. The students had the opportunity to learn a dance and to sing a song with him during the performance. He has performed around the world for over three million students. His visit to Holy Name was sponsored by the Durham Western Museum!

Entire School Gives Thanks

Thanksgiving is a time of celebration and community. The students at Holy Name practiced the time honored ritual of gathering together over a meal. All of the students had lunch together on the last day before vacation, November 23rd. After the meal was over, the Kindergarten through 3rd grade students entertained the crowd with songs, poems and skits. It was a wonderful time for all the students and faculty.

Giving Back to the Community

The students at Holy Name know the meaning of sharing and sacrifice. During the month of November, they brought snack and paper items for their own Holy Name St. Vincent DePaul Society. The St. Vincent DePaul Society provides meals and baskets of items to many people around the community. The students enjoyed knowing that their donations brought a Happy Thanksgiving to those less fortunate.

Decorating the Halls with Hands

Most schools tell their students to keep their hands off the walls. Not at Holy Name!

Emily and Kyair from 1st grade

The students in grades K-2 decorated their hallway with hand prints this week. Their hands were painted a variety of colors and they were told to touch the walls and leave their mark. The handprints are a wonderful addition to an otherwise plain hallway.

Making Gingerbread Houses

The last days before Christmas were all about building community at Holy Name School. What better way to build community between grades than to have the entire school make gingerbread houses? The student council and their advisory board planned the event. Each student in grades K-4 were paired with an older student to help them design their houses. Laughter reigned in the cafeteria as the students worked and sang along to Beach Boys Christmas songs. Supplies were generously provided by the parents of the students. Santa made a surprise appearance to congratulate the students on their creations!

A Resource for Catholic Schools

By Eileen Wirth, Ph.D. Chair of the Department of Journalism and Mass Communication

Used with permission from Creighton University: <http://www.creighton.edu/creightonmagazine/catholicschools/>

Creighton University hopes to expand its longstanding partnership with Catholic elementary and secondary schools to preserve them for generations to come by creating a new center for such work. And the biggest beneficiary of such a center would be Creighton's largest educational partner, the Archdiocese of Omaha, which runs Nebraska's fourth-largest school district, said Timothy Cook, Ph.D., associate professor of education, who spearheads Creighton's work with Catholic schools.

Initiatives include:

- * The Magis Catholic Teacher Corps, a program that places volunteer teachers in under-resourced Catholic schools. Magis teachers combine teaching with living in community and working on their Creighton master's degree in education.
- * Half-priced tuition for teachers in Catholic schools taking graduate courses.
- * The Catholic School Leadership (CSL) certificate program for principals of Catholic schools nationally.
- * A BA/MA religion education certificate program that students can complete in five years.

However, these efforts would have even more impact if they were consolidated in the proposed Center for Catholic School Initiatives (CCSI), an impact that could especially help Catholic schools that are struggling to survive in a difficult economy, Cook said. The center would not only better focus Creighton's efforts on behalf of Catholic schools, but it would serve as a clearinghouse for valuable research that the schools cannot afford to do themselves. The center could also match schools with a wide variety of Creighton experts and volunteers.

Cook said Creighton and other top Catholic universities believe that their support is required to save the nation's K-12 Catholic school system. A study by the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities' (AJCU) Council on Education notes "We are in danger of losing our Catholic schools," the report says. "The tradition, the legacy, the gift of Catholic elementary and secondary education is disappearing ... So how can the tide of Catholic school closings be turned around?"

Holy Name Grade School -- Creighton West

Omaha's Holy Name Catholic Elementary School Principal Sofia Kock said she has begun calling her 140-student inner-city school "Creighton University West," because of the multitude of ways that it partners with the University. Kock listed the following examples of how Creighton aids Holy Name.

- * Holy Name has participated in the Magis program since its beginning, and Kock is on the Magis board. A Magis volunteer teaches 6-8th grade science.
- * Dental students teach lessons about oral health.
- * Health science students have helped run both health fairs and an early childhood education fair.
- * Nursing students do free health screenings, including body mass index screenings that are important in combating obesity.
- * Education professors bring first-year students to observe Holy Name to show them what teaching in an inner-city Catholic school is like.
- * Pharmacy students offer lessons in healthy lifestyles during after-school programs.
- * Holy Name has hosted student teachers and teacher assistants, who give veteran teachers both "an extra pair of hands and a chance to pass on what they have learned."

Kock said that she sees opportunities for future partnerships in research and work with business, marketing and public relations faculty members. Last spring, Holy Name announced that it might have to close because of financial problems, but the school is making a strong comeback, Kock said. "We will survive," she said. The community support that emerged when the school announced its financial crisis was "unbelievable," not only from Holy Name alumni but "we heard from people we had never heard from before." About half of Holy Name's students are nonwhite and non-Catholic, two-thirds are low income and more than 40 percent are from single-parent families.

Holy Name Hall of Fame Honorees 2011

Holy Name is so blessed to acknowledge our 2011 Hall of Fame honorees.

Joe Kozol a 1988 Holy Name graduate, has continued to give back to the Holy Name Community. It is not uncommon to see Joe or one of his employees at Holy Name, from keeping the snow from beneath the feet of students and staff to keeping the lawns looking nice. As the owner of Kozy Lawncare for over 23 years and now the owner of Kozy Self Storage, Kozol finds himself busy nearly every hour of the day. When he isn't spending time with his wife of 14 years Chrystal and their four children Joe is either working at his business or helping around Holy Name. The individual nominating Joe Kozol commented that "Joe has been an example and a leader for many people. He is also a prime figure in the community." Kozol contributes his success in life to the education he received at Holy Name, and fondly remembers the many sporting events and especially thanks Barb Tacke for all that she did for him as a student at Holy Name. Kozol stated that one thing he thinks is special about Holy Name is that "despite everyone wanting to move out west, Holy Name remains strong. It's about the people and how much they care."

As an integral part of Holy Name from 1950-1965 as a teacher and principal, Sr. Mary Ellen Doyle, OSM was thought of highly by both her students and parishioners. One of her nominees stated that "there is no one more deserving of this award." From the moment she stepped through the door of Holy Name School she fell in love with the community. She fondly remembers the 8th grade picnics where she got to know her students outside the walls of the classroom. Sister commented that one of her favorite memories was when the nuns were first allowed to go to the boy's basketball games and how much she loved attending and feeling the Holy Name spirit. In 1965 Sr. Mary Ellen left Holy Name to move to Detroit where she taught Religion, Spanish and Latin at the Servite High School and Holy Redeemer. She commented that Holy Name was always on her mind. She missed the spirit and the community. In 2001, she retired to the Mother House in Omaha. Currently she gives presentations on Our Blessed Mother at Marian and assists with campus ministry. Sr. Mary Ellen commented. "For 15 years Holy Name was my home. It was very hard leaving it, but when I return for the honors banquets and other events I see my students and it makes me happy to see them doing so well. Holy Name never changes in me, while it isn't as big as it used to be, the same spirit is still here. People really care and there is just a wonderful spirit."

As a 1956 grade school graduate of Holy Name, Steve believes that Holy Name Catholic School laid the foundation for both his personal and professional success. As a father of seven and a grandfather of twelve, Dwyer is equally as proud of his family, his business and his love of Holy Name. Dwyer comments that "Holy Name taught me the importance of kindness, humility and respect for others. These qualities have been the foundation of my personal and business mindset." After serving in the Marine Corps for 4 years, he started his own business in 1966. Twenty years later he sold that company and invested in a start-up Analytical Instrumentation business called CETAC Technologies. Dwyer now owns CETAC and the company is known worldwide. While attending Holy Name Grade School, Dwyer contends he was far from a model student. Some of his best known pranks were letting off smoke bombs in the classroom, bringing snakes to school and jumping out windows. Recently, Dwyer and his sons, Matt and Steve, put together the criteria and funded a full ride scholarship to Creighton Prep that is specifically directed to an eighth grade student attending and graduating from Holy Name. Dwyer and his son's believe 110% in the educational and spiritual foundation that is provided at Holy Name School. It is Dwyer's philosophy that Holy Name must continue the tradition and maintain the strong presence as an anchor in this community. In fact, Dwyer has pledged over half of his personal wealth and challenges others to do the same. "This is a community that gets ignored and left behind; a community that needs and deserves as much as any community in the city. If we allow Holy Name to cease being that anchor we will have given up on the hundreds of families that rely on Holy Name to educate and mentor their children. Omaha can grow west to California, but the need in this community will stay right here."

Sr. Rosemary Floersch RSM believes in giving back. As a 1948 grade school graduate of Holy Name, Sr. Rosemary is an instrumental part of Holy Name Catholic Community for many years. As a young child she attended Mass at Holy Name with her parents Catherine and Paul. Her father kept the books at Holy Name. After graduating from high school, she went on to obtain a Bachelor of Science in education from the College of St. Mary in Omaha, an M.A. in Guidance and Counseling from The University of St. Thomas in St. Paul, MN, and completed Post Graduate classes at Ball State University, Texas Christian University and Baylor University. After college, Sr. Rosemary taught elementary school for ten years at Holy Cross, St. Margaret Mary and Joan of Arc in Omaha. Her career continued for thirty-six years at Mercy High in Debate, Guidance and Counseling, English, Study Skills and U.S. History. She was also a volunteer coach of competitive volleyball in elementary and high school and basketball in high school. By vote of the speech and debate coaches she received the Nebraska South Coach of the Year award in 1998, 2002, 2001, and 2000. In January 2003 Sister began working with Sudanese refugee families and started the Sudanese Outreach Project that assists families with basic needs and helps them move toward self-sufficiency. Many of the families she works with attend Holy Name Parish and School.

"I am very impressed with the dedication of the pastor, deacon, principal, staff, teachers and volunteers at Holy Name. They do an excellent job of taking care of the spiritual and physical welfare of those in the parish and community. There is a continuity in the school curriculum from grade to grade that enables success in high school and beyond. The dedication of the school personnel in meeting the individual needs of students is amazing."

From the Director of Development

Colleen Peterson

In January I spend a lot of time thanking God for sunshine! The next thing I thank Him for is the generous support of Holy Name that is realized through all of you! Our blessings are abundant because of our success in the work of our mission and because of the consistent support of all who support our work. Thank you so very much!

The alumni and development office has a very busy schedule for the first six months of 2011. It is great to hear from and see so many of you as we plan and carry out various activities and events. The first big push is the 2011 Annual Appeal. This appeal has been a part of our yearly development efforts to maintain operating funds for the school. Our junior high students are making phone calls to many of you to ask for support of this appeal. They are just as zealous about carrying on the great work at Holy Name School as we were at their age. I hope there are many heartfelt conversations between our students of today and you – our students of yesterday. Please consider a gift to the 2011 Annual Appeal.

The 2011 Holy Name Hall of Famers have been named! We celebrate another group of individuals who have been successful throughout their lives and believe in the Holy Name spirit, give much credit to their education and upbringing provided by the Holy Name community. The annual Hall of Fame Night of Honor event will be held on Thursday, April 14th. It is always a very difficult decision to choose the honorees as we have so many wonderful people that support Holy Name. Blessings to each of you! Sr. Mary Ellen Doyle, OSM, Stephen Dwyer G56, , Sr. Rosemary G48 Floersch RSM and Joseph Kozol H88. Your dedication to the mission of this community is outstanding!

Thanks for all you do for Holy Name. My prayers go out to each and every one of you!

Donation Provides New Ceilings in 7th and 8th Grade Classrooms

Recently an anonymous donor gave Holy Name a gift to do maintenance work in the school building . During the winter break the maintenance staff installed new drop ceilings and lights in the 7th and 8th grade classrooms. Students, staff and faculty are grateful for donations like these because it helps sustain our wonderful school, and also provides a better learning environment for our students.

A Note from Father Frank

Fr. Frank

There is a spirit of welcome about Holy Name Parish and School that many of my brother priests envy. I have priest friends all around the Midwest and many of them have diverse parishes, but they struggle to bring the different groups together. Holy Name has a history of welcoming people. Over the years there have been many families brought into this country and this area because of the care and concern of the people of Holy Name. Many of those families who were sponsored have done great things in the parish and in the area. Consciously or unconsciously this lesson has helped people to be open to people of different cultures and backgrounds.

I see the second part of what has made us this way being our charitable spirit. Our St. Vincent de Paul Society volunteers reach out to everyone in the neighborhood. This opens our eyes to the fact that hardship can hit anyone. Our hearts become our guide and our eyes become the eyes of God who loves us all.

The Ethnic Festival last fall celebrated diversity. It was so amazing to see how many people were actually surprised to realize just how diverse we are as a parish. This is the way it should be; we shouldn't have to remind ourselves, "This person is different, but I should be nice to them." It should be second nature. We have families in our school who chose Holy Name for this particular reason. They want their children to be comfortable with diversity because they know this is the world they will grow up in. Watching our school children blend together is a true joy! Last month gave us a perfect example of this spirit in action. As the Sudanese people in the Midwest voted on the future of their home country, they came to St. Richard because of the openness that they had felt there. The numbers of Sudanese people who came to vote was overwhelming and some additional space was necessary for people to rest as they waited to vote; it was Holy Name that opened its doors.

I can't foretell the future but it doesn't take a prophet to see that this diversity will be a part of the makeup of Holy Name for years to come. The best part will be the blessings that come from having hearts that know people as God knows them, with love. I hope that some of my brother priests can come and visit and see you in action. Thank you for your caring hearts and spirit of welcome!

Holy Name Grateful for Ignation Volunteer Art Nepel

The volunteer services of Art have been so important to Holy Name Parish and School. Working side by side with our Maintenance staff person Art has completed many small projects to support the look and feel of our campus buildings. Over this past summer he was instrumental in leading a project to complete the construction of our school sign at the entrance to our school building. It took this community three years to raise the funds necessary for the sign. Once we had the funds secured Art took the reins and lead a group of six contractors through the process of building the beautiful brick and sandstone sign that now exists at the main entrance to the school. God is always good to us, but sending us Art is one of the greatest things that has happened to us in the sense of human support for a long, long time.

God bless Art and the great work of the Ignation Volunteer Corps program!
